Sir David conducts

GUILDFORD Philharmonic Choir will be conducted by the internationally famous conductor, Sir David Willcocks, at a special concert in the town's cathedral on Sunday.

Sir David, former director of the Royal College of Music and currently conductor of the Bach Choir, will lead Guildford singers through a performance of the Hymn of Jesus by Holst and the Durufle Requiem.

The philharmonic choir is looking for a new Choirmaster for when Mr. Simon Halsey, who has conducted the choir for the last three years, bows out.

There have been more than 50 applications for the post, and the conductor of Guildford Philharmonic Orchestra, Sir Charles Groves, will vet the hopefuls.
